Therefore, when making an investment decision, the investor must be fully aware of the essence of the investment, they must be guided by their own experience, goals and expectations.

Each of the presented risks can have a certain negative impact on both the Bank's position and the market situation, resulting in a decrease in the share turnover in the market, a decrease in the Bank's income, an increase in expenses, which in turn can lead to a decrease in stock prices.

The following are the main risks identified by the Bank that an investor shall take when investing in shares:

Business risk, which may be caused as a result of unfavorable changes of general economic situation, the banking services sector or the competitive position, as a result of which, the Bank's profit may decline, resulting in stock price decline.

Liquidity risk, which may be caused by a sharp change in the market situation, as a result of the deterioration of the Bank's financial condition, as a result of which the shares may lose their attractiveness, leading to a fall in their price. As a result, the investor in the stock is not able to sell the shares quickly at a favorable price at any time, consequently he suffers financial losses, having to sell them at a lower price.

Interest rate risk, which may be due to a sharp change in market interest rates, which, as an alternative investment direction, indirectly affects stock prices.

Foreign exchange risk, which arises due to exchange rate fluctuations, and can have a negative impact on both the Bank and the securities market. The shares will be quoted and paid in AMD, therefore, for investors whose financial flows are in other currencies, these shares contain significant foreign exchange risks.

Risk of changes in the legal framework, which may arise due to unfavorable changes in the legislation, which may affect both the Bank's operations and the market situation. At the same time, it shall be noted that these changes may also affect the attractiveness of stocks and as a result, they will also affect liquidity.

It shall be noted that the Bank is taking all necessary measures to reduce the negative impact of these factors. #### 4.2. Risk factors

Like any financial activity, banking always involves risk. Banking risk is the probability that the bank will not make a profit as a result of the given activity, will receive a profit significantly lower than the planned volumes or will suffer a loss.

acba

In any economic activity, especially banking, the concept of zero risk is impossible; the question is not the exclusion at all, but the assessment of its correct volumetric characteristics and effective management.

Risk management "ACBA BANK" OJSC is the most important part of the management system and it presents integrity of interconnected actions for the prevention and reduction of potential losses. The risk management process is extremely important to maintain the profitability of the Bank.

Each of the risks, presented below, may cause the deterioration of the Bank's financial position, financial performance and cash flows, as well as decrease of market position, competitiveness and long-term development, which in turn can lead to the non-performance of commitments undertaken by the Bank in full or partially or make the fast and deficient sale of the shares and receipt of dividends by the investors complicated to a certain degree in the future.

Investors shall also keep in mind that the risks presented below are not all the risks that the Bank may ever incur. There may be additional risks that the bank does not currently consider significant, or that are not currently known to it, and any such risk may result in a partial or total loss of the investor's funds.

During its activity, the Bank faces the following main risks:

Credit risk - The Bank is exposed to credit risk, which is the risk of financial loss when the borrower or the contracting party of the financial instrument is unable to perform its contractual obligations to the Bank, which affects its operations, incurs additional costs, and negatively affects the profits.

Credit risk is one of the main risks of the Bank, which is why the Bank monitors it very carefully. Credit risk is mainly related to credit operations, which lead to the provision of loans and borrowings, investment activities, which add debt securities to the Bank's asset portfolio, and other debt instruments. Risk is also present in offbalance sheet financial instruments, such as credit liabilities.

Credit risk management and control is carried out by the Bank's Risk Management and Compliance Department. The reports are regularly submitted to the Bank's Board, Risk Management Committee and Chief Executive Officer.

According to the Bank's loan portfolio risk analysis, the Bank's portfolio has the following structure:

Loans to customers and other loans	31.12.2020 (audited)	31.12.2019 (audited)
Loans, including:	315,211,734	282,985,066
Group 1 <sup>3</sup>	273,686,080	268,703,732

&lt;sup>3</sup> Group 1: At the time of initial recognition of a financial instrument, it is generally classified in Group 1. Group 1 includes loans that have had a significant improvement in credit risk at the reporting date and have been transferred here from Group 2.

Group 2 <sup>4</sup>	25,070,067	3,886,977
Group 3 <sup>5</sup>	16,140,724	10,055,157
POCI <sup>6</sup>	314,863	339,200:
Reserve for possible losses	12,193,177	7,541,759

In order to effectively manage credit risks, the Bank facilitates loan portfolio diversification, monitors various types of concentrations, continuously monitors the condition of individual loans, regularly assesses the solvency of its customers, adjusting lending limits as necessary, and the minimum acceptable score.

The bank uses a variety of measures to mitigate credit risk, in particular, reducing credit risk through collateral. The Bank establishes rules on the acceptability of certain types of collateral or the mitigation of risks.

The main types of collateral for loans and borrowings are:

- Real estate pledged under mortgage agreements
- Operational assets of organizations: buildings, other fixed assets, resources
- Financial instruments: debt and equity securities
- Movable property.

Collateral for different financial assets is determined by the nature of the financial instrument.

Liquidity risk is the risk that the Bank will not have sufficient liquidity to repay its commitments on time. Liquidity risk arises from non-conformity of maturity of assets and liabilities.

Asset and liability maturity and / or controlled non-compliance is an essential factor in liquidity management. Full compliance of maturity of assets and liabilities is not typical for financial institutions due to the variety of transactions and the uncertainty of maturities. Non-conformity makes it possible to increase profitability, but it can also increase liquidity risk.

To mitigate this risk, the Bank raises additional funds in addition to its main deposit base, manages assets taking into account liquidity risk, analyzes future cash flows, and liquidity on a daily, weekly, and monthly basis. This includes estimates of expected cash flows. The Bank maintains a highly liquid, decentralized asset portfolio that can be easily cashed in the event of an unforeseen disruption to cash flows. In addition, at the request of the Central Bank, the Bank maintains mandatory reserves in the Central Bank in the size of 4% of its monetary liabilities in AMD and in the size of 10% and 8% of the liabilities in AMD and foreign currency, correspondingly AMD and foreign currency, which is a reserve buffer to maintain the possible outflow.

Liquidity position is assessed and managed in case of different scenarios, taking into account the stress factors, related to the market in general and to the Bank in particular. Liquidity management of the bank requires taking into account the level of liquid assets required to repay liabilities on time, ensure access to various sources of financing, the availability of an emergency financing plan, and monitor the balance sheet liquidity standards in accordance with regulatory requirements. The Bank calculates liquidity ratios in accordance with the requirements of the Central Bank of Armenia.

Interest rate risk - This risk is the risk that future cash flows of financial instruments or their fair value may change as a result of adverse interest rate changes. Fluctuations in market interest rates may affect the Bank's financial condition, income / expense and cash flow.

Foreign currency risk - This risk is the risk that assets denominated in foreign currency exceed or are less than liabilities denominated in the same currency. Therefore, the Bank may bear foreign exchange risk in the presence of open foreign exchange positions.

The Bank's governing bodies have set limits for currency positions. Positions are monitored on a daily basis. Foreign exchange risk in the Bank is quite low, as the Bank pursues a balanced, low-risk policy.

Price risk - This risk is the risk of losses for the Bank as a result of changes in the prices of tangible assets (property, collateral).

Operational risk - The probability of loss of funds due to mistakes, technical malfunctions and frauds due to the actions of employees. Of the risks associated with the failure of technical assets, the risks endangering the complete maintenance of the database are of greater importance to the Bank. In this regard, the Bank regularly archives the database, copies of which are stored both on the Bank's servers, computers and external drives. In order to reduce the risks caused by human factors, the Bank has introduced an internal control system, the elements of which are double verification of transactions and approval by at least two persons, regular audits of the Bank, regular audits by the permanent controller, etc.

The risk of changes in the legislative and regulatory framework arises as a result of legislative changes, which may affect both the Bank's activities and the market situation. Banking is an activity subject to licensing and regulation by the state authorities and is one of the most controlled sectors of the Armenian economy. The purpose of state regulation in the field of banking is the protection of the rights of investors and customers, which is carried out by defining the standards of economic activity and banking risk management systems. This means that changes in government regulation are possible, which can significantly affect the Bank's operations and even negatively affect the Bank's performance.

Reputation risk – the probability that the negative public opinion about the Bank (true or false) will lead to a decrease in the number of customers, a reduction in the volume of transactions with counterparties / customers, a decrease in the costeffectiveness of litigation and decrease of profitability. In this regard, the Bank appreciates its good reputation and makes every effort to maintain the Bank's reputation. The Bank takes appropriate measures to comply with the requirements of international sanctions (in particular, those applied by the United Nations, the European Union, France and the United States) so as not to risk reputation.

Non-compliance risk - the risk of legal, administrative or disciplinary sanctions against the Bank, the risk of significant financial losses, the risk of non-compliance, which is the result of not adhering to the legal and regulatory requirements, governing banking and financial activities, the Bank's internal legal acts, instructions of the executive management, rules of professional conduct and ethics.

In order to effectively manage and control this type of risk, the Bank has developed internal financial security policies, legal acts, strict control measures to ensure that its activities comply with the ML/TF regulatory requirements set by law and regulations. The Bank periodically, but not later than once a year, reviews its possible ML/TF risks.

Country risk - depends on the level of socio-economic development of the country, its place, role, as well as the prevailing political situation. Geo-political situation and unfavorable changes may cause such negative factors that may have adverse effects on the overall economic situation, could lead to a reduction in economic activity and income of population, which would affect all sectors of economy, to which the Bank provides loans. In order to effectively manage and reduce risks, the Bank regularly conducts analyzes of various scenarios of the impact of possible negative changes in the economy.

Competitive risk - the probability of losing potential Bank revenues due to the provision of similar services by rival banks in the market on more favorable terms. The risk of competitive conditions arises in the conditions of constantly intensifying competition in the market of banking services of the Republic of Armenia.

The banking services market of the Republic of Armenia is highly competitive and in order to strengthen its competitive position, the Bank is guided by the principles of corporate governance, introduces innovative banking technologies and improves the quality of services provided.

Realizing the above-mentioned risks, "ACBA BANK" OJSC constantly defines and implements a strategy that will promote effective risk management and mitigation mechanisms.

In order to combat the COVID-19 epidemic that emerged at the end of 2019 and the various consequences that accompany it, organizations test the epidemic from the outset and implement business plans to continue working in emergencies, including new digital solutions, flexible organizational transformations, alternative jobs – home office, transfer of trade and service to online domain as much as possible.

This situation forced banks to assess the need for a flexible strategy, readiness to respond as quickly as possible to the external environment, operational resilience, the ability to implement new organizational and operational models, and ultimately ensure and accelerate business migration to digitalization. Moreover, new initiatives that can use the data and the results of the analysis based on them to improve the customer experience have become a priority.

Due to the above, the tendencies of the banking system transformation can be divided into several main directions:

- Focus on digital banking experience and complete digitalization
- Application of machine learning and artificial intelligence /AI/
- Moving to cloud drives
- Process automation, robotics
- Investments in privacy and security
- Reorganization of work.

The above-mentioned international tendencies will also have their impact on the Armenian banking sector.

It is necessary to take into account the fact that in the coming years, the development of the Armenian banking sector will be promoted by the projects, related to a number of sectors (agriculture, energy infrastructure, SME, IT, transport, education), included in the program of 2019-2023 of the RA Government. In particular:

• Within the framework of programs aimed at promoting the activities of start-up entrepreneurs and SMEs, banks will contribute to the development of the sector by providing them with more favorable financing conditions.

• Banks will continue to actively participate in the agricultural development projects envisaged by the Government program, in particular in the process of providing sub-loans and subsidies, promoting

- use of the latest technologies in the agricultural sector
- export of agricultural products
- development of agro-tourism
- o development of the Renewable Energy sector
- o implementation of irrigation systems development program.

• Programs aimed at supporting the development of the IT sector by the Government of the Republic of Armenia, such as the financing of startups, cooperation with leading countries in the IT sector and international organizations, will enable local IT companies to effectively exchange experience.

• The cooperation of banks and IT organizations will not only contribute to the automation of banking processes with innovative solutions and improve the quality of services provided, but also will make the Armenian banking system more competitive in the international market.

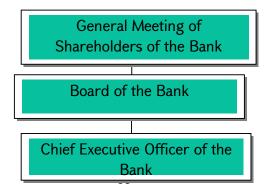

• The educational programs implemented within the framework of the government program, in particular the cooperation between technology companies and universities, the establishment of technology education centers in Yerevan and regions will contribute to the training and qualification of highly qualified IT specialists in accordance with modern requirements, which in turn will stimulate the creation of a quality labor market.

Thus, taking into account the trends of dynamic development of the financial system and the forecasted trends, we conclude that in order to ensure sustainable growth and to be competitive, financial institutions must be willing to make appropriate investments to meet customer needs through innovative solutions that will help them meet the challenges of the outside world.
